

I. S. D. AND ROUTT MEET UNDER LIGHTS TONIGHT

I.S.D. Junior Collegians Win From Illinois College Frosh 14-6 in Opening Game of Year

Illinois School for the Deaf's Junior College may win and lose a lot of games before it does out of existence, but it ever does, but no one can deny that they did not set off on the right foot. They used a lot of left feet too, for they paved the way for two touchdowns to beat the Illinois College Wildcats 14 to 6 in a tussle that became a battle in the second half when the college freshmen opened up their running attack.

It was a great comeback day for Gene Donegheue and Lusty Leo Suter, these two former I. S. D. stars carrying the junior college team to a victory with a touchdown apiece, Suter cutting through the Wildcat line and fading into a cutback for a 20-yard jaunt, and Donegheue bursting through the Wildcat line for a 35-yard run to the goal line. Donegheue booted his attempts at points after touchdown between the uprights, despite the fact that one of them was partially blocked.

Kicking on the first down all thru the first half, the college freshmen did not attempt anything in the way of an offense. They turned on the heat in the second half however, and with Frey serving as a spearhead for a somewhat disorganized attack, the freshmen carried the ball into Tiger territory and then scored when Clem took a pass from Frey, the pass gaining about 20 yards.

That was the closest the college frosh came to scoring all afternoon, for the Tigers, with their ground gaining attack working well on straight shots into the line, kept the ball in the Wildcat territory. Their trick stunts were not working well, however, because the future Blueboys were smashing off tackle drives and around the end stunts with small gains.

Some of the best kicking seen here for some time grew out of the game, Harley Cox featuring in this role for the victors and Frey doing some neat booting for the Wildcats. Lions spirals that caught both safety men too close to the scrimmage line were rather usual, despite the high wind that hindered teams heading west.

The Don Loses One. But after all, it seemed that the crowd that came out to the game, it was a large one, came to see Suter and Donegheue in action, and they were not disappointed. Suter's touchdown jaunt through a tightly crowded field brought back memories of other days as the lucky Tiger halfback shook off two tacklers, cut back and faded away from tacklers.

Donegheue's 55-yard sprint for a touchdown was as explosive as it was long. Taking the ball on a fake spinner, the Don shot through an opening between his weak side guard and tackle, shot into the open behind the line of scrimmage, and then simply waded through one freshman tackler. None of the rest of the Wildcats were able to overhaul the fleeing ex-Tiger and he crossed the goal line three yards in front of his nearest pursuer.

Donegheue lost one of the most spectacular touchdowns of the game. The freshmen had been backed up to their own ten-yard line during the second quarter, and booted out. Donegheue took the ball around middle of the field and sharply across while his interference was forming, and then streaked down the sidelines with team mates taking out freshmen tacklers as they loomed into view. It was a neat performance, and a credit to the former players on Coach S. Robey S. Burns high school teams. The run was called back however, because one of the Illinois linemen was offside on the play.

Starting and sensational runs were the Don's specialty during the game. Several times he upreared 20-yard sprints, and one one occasion ran through at least five freshmen tacklers, fading as each one connected with him and shaking them off.

The Illinois defense was tight most of the afternoon, with freshmen stunts into the tackle seldom gaining ground. Frey did most of the ball carrying, getting away once for a 20-yard gain on a lateral pass from Keeley.

Two linemen, Kramer, a former Jerseyville high athlete, and Wafley, a lad from Granite City, stood out in the freshman defense. Hinkle, at tackle, and Prossie, former Virden high athlete, stood out at both tackle and end. W. Jones and Prossie stopped the end runs of the Illinois after they had let a couple set around them for long gains.

The two teams probably will meet again some time next week. Athletic Director Van Meter announced last night, in a benefit game for the junior college team. The date has not been definitely set as yet.

BIG TEN BRIEFS

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 25.—(P)—After concentrating on defensive measures all week, Coach Bob Zupke devoted today's Illinois drill to polishing up the offense to be used at Michigan Saturday. The Illini will leave for Ann Arbor tomorrow morning and will arrive in time for a short practice in Michigan stadium in the evening. The squad will spend Friday night at Dearborn, Mich.

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—(P)—Coach Bernie Bierman and his Gophers set off tonight for their first Big Ten start against Iowa Saturday, after already acquiring a national distinction. Except for uncertainty over Art Clarkson, first string halfback, the Gophers will be in just as good physical form for the Hawkeyes as they were in beating Pittsburgh. Julius Alfonso, regular last year whose job was stolen from him this fall by Clarkson, seemed sure of starting at right half.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 25.—(P)—The Michigan Gridders today continued to devote attention to an aerial attack as they held their last strenuous work-out before the Illinois game Saturday. Half of the practice session was devoted to polishing up a forward pass offensive with Johnny Geresel and Willie Ward as the principals. The remainder of the session was given over to practicing defensive measures against Illinois pass plays.

Columbus, O., Oct. 25.—(P)—Back in the Big Ten way after taking a week off to turn back the Red Raiders of Colgate, Ohio State's convalescent Hawkeyes headed for Evanston, Ill., tonight, where they will meet the Northwestern Wildcats Saturday.

For the first time since the curtain-raiser with Indiana, coach Francis A. Schmidt has the full strength of his squad available.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—(P)—Wisconsin devoted almost the entire practice session today to perfecting a wide variety of new pass plays which are due to be tested against Notre Dame Saturday. The Badger aerial game calls upon just about every backfield man as a potential passer or receiver. The Badgers spent the last portion of the practice in getting down under punts.

NOTICE TO WATER CONSUMERS

Water will be shut off from 9 a. m. until 2 p. m. Friday, Oct. 26, from West State north to Walnut and from Prairie street east to North Main Street.

GARDEN THINKING OVER NEW PLANS

Outdoor Bout May Be Staged in Florida This Year — Southerners Looking For One of Most Prosperous Winters of Recent Years.

BY EDWARD J. NEILL
Associated Press Sports Writer
New York.—(P)—Once more Madison Square Garden is toying with the idea of a big outdoor fight in Florida in February, when the north is snow-bound, and people with the time and money to play, head for the south-land.

The winter custom Tex Rickard inaugurated in 1929 with a $400,000 match he never lived to see, between Bill Strubling and Jack Sharkey at Miami Beach, didn't turn out at all well last February. Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran drew barely one-tenth of that for a heavyweight match in Miami.

But just the same, Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri, from whom he won his lightweight title, may try to swing the tide back into the prosperity channel with their third match, or Max Schmeling may bid for another title chance by tackling Art Lasky, the lanky Jewish boy from Minneapolis, in the climax of the winter eliminations.

Both propositions are still wide open and filled with ifs and buts.

They tell me down there this will be the most prosperous winter in Florida since the depression hit us. Says Jimmy Johnston, the Garden's boxing head, "We've got an arena lying idle in Miami, renovated last winter. There's a very good chance that we'll put on another show there this February."

There are interesting sidelights to the making of both matches in the south.

Ross, who lost his welterweight title back to Jimmy McLarnin here last month, insists he won't fight anywhere here in New York again because of bad decisions and high taxes on his earnings.

Barney wants to fight Canzoneri, whom he now has beaten twice in Chicago but there too are complications. In the struggle for control of the bankrupt Chicago stadium, Ross' managers are lined up with Joe Foley, former director. But the ring owls seem to think the opposition team of Lewis and Jim Mullins, former flit emirs of the mid-west, eventually will rule the stadium, and Barney won't deal with them.

The logical thing, then, is a third meeting on a neutral ground, Miami, probably with the added attraction of Jack Dempsey as referee.

The Schmeling-Lasky thing is much more definite. The German former champion, who will receive $100,000 during November and December for making a motion picture in his homeland, will return here in January. He has contracted to fight for the Garden for two years, but insists that his matches be staged outdoors.

If Steve Hamas refuses to tackle both Schmeling and Lasky, over whom he holds decisions, the Garden promptly will match the latter pair and Schmeling will insist that the duel be staged outdoors in Florida, the winner to challenge Baer in June.

If Hamas does fight Lasky 15 rounds here, the odds are all in favor of the Minnesota Hebrew winning over the longer route, thus qualifying him to meet Schmeling in February anyway, in Florida perhaps.

It all works out very neatly. But with the chill winter winds beginning to blow, and overcoats coming out of pawnshops along cauliflower row, it may be that the wish is the father of quintuplets.

LENGTHY SCRIMMAGE

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 25.—(P)—Notre Dame cleaned up preparation for Saturday's meeting with Wisconsin, by scrimmaging at length against a reserve eleven today.

Wally Promhart was at quarterback where he is expected to start Saturday, and Jack Laybourn was back at center. Elmer Layden halted practice on numerous occasions to point out defects in the blocking.

ONE TACKLE GONE

Already Coach Frank Walker has lost one player, Ashton Muehlhausen, 200 pound tackle who was beginning to get the idea of the game. The Crimson coach also has been forced to make a change in the backfield in an effort to get things moving better, putting "Rabbit" Ransom at one of the halfback positions.

The J. H. S. starting line-up probably will be Parks and Hamilton at ends, Wicks and Melvin tackles. Breeding and Hopper guards, Ward center. Ted Rammelkamp at quarter. Stanley Davis and Ransom at halfbacks, and Ted Walright at fullback. Lanskink, Hartman, McDonald, Franks and Darr will be the reserve linemen, and DeWitt will be the sole backfield replacement making the trip.

Carrollton is tied with Roodhouse for the lead in the Illinois Valley conference, and has one of the best teams the Greene county seat has turned out in years. With Simonds, Burton, Oser and Scott in the backfield, the Carrollton team is armed with speedy and powerful line pounders. Oser goes in for the open field work, and is a slippery lad once he clears the line.

Jacksonville high, which has not lost a football game to an Illinois Valley conference team in over a year, and which has two consecutive victories over Carrollton, will go down to that football center this afternoon in an attempt to continue the streak of victories, but they will be up against a different Carrollton team from the ones they have been registering against in past years.

Only two Illinois Valley games are on the schedule this week, and both of the leaders, Carrollton and Roodhouse, are not working on their conference records this week. One of the games will bring together two of the squads with the least material and most scrap at Winchester this afternoon when Greenfield attempts to down the home team. The other game will involve Pittsfield and Jerseyville, with Jerseyville's heavyweights meeting a light gut game Pittsfield team.

Ill fortune is continuing to dog the Jacksonville high squad, according to reports from the front office of the institution. Mose Wicks will be out for a week following the Carrollton game in view of a condition he acquired in one of his studies, and there was some doubt that one or two of the other boys would pull through the first unit of work with enough creditable scholastic work to permit them to play football.

Already Coach Frank Walker has lost one player, Ashton Muehlhausen, 200 pound tackle who was beginning to get the idea of the game. The Crimson coach also has been forced to make a change in the backfield in an effort to get things moving better, putting "Rabbit" Ransom at one of the halfback positions.

Firing a verbal blast at the University of Southern California's football squad by classing them as "Hollywood-struck" and "toys to some henna-haired beauty," Jack Frankish, above, editor of the Daily Trojan, student publication, has created a stir on the campus. Frankish's blast followed the Trojans' loss to Washington State, 19-0, and their poor showing against Little College of the Pacific.

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—(P)—In another day of upsets, the women's western golf championship lost its titleholder today and another favorite barely escaped elimination as the tournament moved into the semifinals.

Miss Lucile Robinson of Des Moines, Ia., title defender, lost a surprisingly one-sided match to Mrs. W. E. Shepherd of Los Angeles, 5 and 4.

Miss Dorothy Traugott of San Francisco, another of the tournament's favorites, went to the 20th hole to defeat Mrs. Gregg Lufur of Los Angeles, one up.

Mrs. L. D. Cheney of San Gabriel, twice a western champion, alone encountered no difficulty. She defeated Miss Barbara Ransom of Stockton, Calif., 6 and 5.

MINNESOTA MEETS IOWA SATURDAY

By L. E. Skelley
Associated Press Sports Writer
Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 25.—(P)—There may be trouble directly ahead for mighty Minnesota's football forces, hard on the trail to a national championship.

For Iowa's Hawkeyes, wings clipped and torn by Nebraska and Iowa State, tonight were in a belligerent mood as they awaited the Gopher attack Saturday.

Shocked but not discouraged by the two defeats after a brilliant victory over Northwestern, Iowa supporters believed their team was in the perfect psychological position for an upset triumph over Minnesota.

The campus critics figure that Minnesota, still thinking about the 13 to 7 victory over Pittsburgh last week, will not take the Hawkeyes as seriously as the Panthers. Then, they reason, the Iowa team will swing back into its early season stride as the natural reaction to two defeats and the added tonic of a homecoming crowd.

Added encouragement comes to Iowa fans when they look back to 1928 and 1929 when two other powerful teams from the northland came to Iowa City, overwhelming favorites. They returned, however, beaten 7 to 6 and 9 to 7, respectively.

The coaching staff and players, however, say nothing about Minnesota. It has been all work and little for publication this week behind the barred gates of old Iowa field.

Ossie Solem, the head man, refused to talk either about Minnesota or his team's recent reverses.

GOPHERS PLAY "DUMB" FOOTBALL BUT THEIR ATTACK MUCH FEARED

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Chicago.—(P)—Minnesota plays "dumb football."

Sure, and those word series pitching heroes from St. Louis are called "Dizzy" and "Daffy" too.

Just as a flock of baseball stars would like to pick up or buy some of that "Dizzy" and "Daffy" stuff from the eminent Dean brothers, so would a lot of coaches like to see their teams go out on the gridiron and play some of that "dumb Minnesota football" one of these fine Saturday afternoons.

That's the big shock of the season to Minnesota's rivals in the Big Ten football championship race. For years, they have watched one Gopher powerhouse after another blow up with one "dumb" play, but this season they have just about abandoned hope. Not only have the Gophers got more than their usual power, but they are surprising friend and foe alike with some of the smartest and well executed plays of the campaign.

Against North Dakota State, the Gophers were good as they piled up a 56 to 12 margin. They were better as they beat Nebraska, 20 to 0. In the final period of that game with cautious tactics and let loose with an attack that brought them from behind to victory, they were brilliant.

BABE RUTH MAY PILOT ATHLETICS

New York, Oct. 25.—(P)—The New York Daily News says that Babe Ruth is slated to become manager of the Philadelphia Athletics next season and that Connie Mack, veteran pilot who will be 72 years old in December, will retire.

Mack's retirement, the paper says, will be announced when he returns in January from an exhibition tour to the Orient with a group of major league players of which Ruth is manager.

Colmel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, will not stand in Ruth's way of accepting the new post. By piloting the barnstorming team, Ruth will learn Mack's system of diamond strategy and will be prepared to take over the managerial reins, the paper says.

"Just what terms were offered the Babe is uncertain," the News says, "but it was indicated that in addition to a salary comparable to the one the Babe would have accepted had he renewed his contract with the Yankees, Ruth will be given a small block of Athletic stock."

Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, said there was "nothing to" the report.

Alphonse Leemans, above, star backfield performer of George Washington University's grid squad, has reported to university authorities that he received a letter offering him $300 to take an injury which would keep him out of the recent game against Tulsa University. Authorities are investigating the matter.

Routt high's Rockets, blazing as brilliantly if not more so than they have in running up 12-strung of consecutive victories to 27, will charge onto the Illinois College field, dried yesterday's sun and wind into an almost ideal playing field, tonight at eight o'clock to meet Illinois School for the Deaf, arch city rivals of the Rockets, and regarded as one of the stumbling blocks in their path to another undefeated season.

It all depends upon where you stand as to your reactions regarding tonight's game, for the only one of the intra-city series carried this year, for there are many things that might happen, making almost anyone's prediction just as good as that of the most accurate expert.

Statistics show that Routt has the edge from several angles. They have more game tried players, they have defeated everyone thus far on their schedule, and they've been doing it for the last three years. They have a heavier line by more than five pounds to the man, and a heavier backfield by a few pounds per man. Those in charge of athletics at the west side school, will tell you that the deaf lads are not as intelligent as their hearing brothers from the east side of the city.

Where then, is the Tiger chance for a victory? It lies in that almost indeterminate something that makes great teams overnight, out of what has been just a mediocre outfit. The question is will the Tigers respond to the urging, give that one big game of the year, and spill the dope into the tiny small creek beds that were formed by the rain on the Illinois field.

Dark Outlook For Tigers
The outlook is indeed dark for the Tigers. Routt started slowly, but by last week, when they rolled over a good Quincy academy team by a 47-0 score, they were good enough to go up against some of the best junior college eleven in the business. The Rockets in that game were not satisfied with making one block but after performing their first assignments honestly, they picked themselves out of the mud and dashed down the field to make another block.

Routt was clicking last Friday night. They were not keyed for their homecoming game any more than the bon-fires and crowd would key any bunch of boys. They have not been keyed particularly high for the Tigers, but the spirit all week along on the Routt campus has been: "We can't lose this one."

Coach Wallace Baptist said last night he probably would start Proffit at one of the wing positions, instead of Henry, but that he would have his practice and ready to rush in at any time. Henry, a particularly valuable in promoting a forward passing game, with his height to great advantage, Coach S. Robey Burns has countered with his angular lad, Baumann, the alert youngster who grabbed two passes out of the ether last Friday to lead the Tigers to a one touchdown victory over Trinity, of Bloomington.

Otherwise, both line-ups will be the same as they have been since the start of the season. Coach Burns will lose practically his entire team at the end of this season, as most of the boys on the squad are 18 years of age and will become ineligible under the I. H. S. A. ruling after the semester during which they attain their 19th birthday.

Gene Donegheue, who holds a gold life saving medal, a lot of other trophies of athletics, and who probably was one of the great of Tiger athletes during his time, is just about as good as he was back in his palmy high school career.

Leo Suter, another of the Tiger athletes who causes a discussion among the fans who have followed these boys as to whether he came up to Donegheue in playing ability, has dropped back just a bit farther, but it won't be only a couple of games until he is the usual battering side stepping Leo the Lion.

A football team can't be built around two stars and be expected to function well unless they have a lot of other good boys along with them. And that's what this junior college team appears to have. They are going to make things tough for opponents in the future.

The Illinois College freshmen took their defeat gracefully, but they are ready to come back for more. Plans for the second game against the Illini had not been completed yesterday, but Athletic Director Van Meter approved the idea and then told his freshmen that they would have to begin to hustle.

It might be that the second meeting will be played under lights as a benefit performance for the I. S. D. Collegians. They are just getting started this year, and they are beginning their financial efforts with a big naught.

Illinois College has some good boys on the freshman squad. The coach was particularly impressed with the work of Kramer, Wafley and Prossie. This boy Prossie is a former Virden lad who did not report for football this year until yesterday.

The college freshmen had only five plays for the game, and one of the most unique of calling signals against the deaf that has ever been used. The quarterback, a lad named Norris from Monticello, simply covered his mouth with his hand and shouted "take the tackle out" or "in" or "in and out" and away went the play.

The other two plays were a lateral pass and a punt. The punts and the lateral pass gained ground, the punts many times and the lateral pass once.

Coach Wallace Baptist is protesting the claim that I. S. D. has a lot of inexperienced players this year. He dug out from the eligibility sheets exchanged between the two schools that I. S. D. has a squad of 18 year old boys, for the most part, that eight of them have been on the squad three seasons, 13 have played two seasons, and only one has been on the squad four years.

But be that as it may, tonight's game looks to us like another Routt victory. Maybe we are not playing stars, but we're playing a victory for the local teams, and we've been asked so many times how it is going to come out that if our opinion is news, it should be printed.

After each football game at Harvard, Eddie Casey, the Harvard football chief invites all of the newspaper men to sit down in the Dillon Field house and discuss the developments of the contest, regardless of the issue. No questions are barred. At both Princeton and Yale, the boys are also welcome, and once every fall, Fritz Crisler gives a big party for the boys of the Fourth Estate.

Elmer Layden is putting on the same program at Notre Dame except that each Friday night before a big game, there is a party for the writing gentry.

In the old days, the policy often was "football is our game and we are playing it for our own benefit and recreation and it is no affair of those outside the institution or its connections," and the result was that the press printed what it could find out from any source and paid no attention to the coach.

The great universities have found that this was an erroneous view. They learned that they could not command exclusive isolation. The public insisted upon getting an eye-ful and an earful.

Harvard held out longer than any of the other big eastern schools.

Mike Tobin and Knute Rockne were pioneers in the west in making the press boys comfortable.

Today all first class colleges and universities co-operate in giving correct information to the writers, and as a result they are filling their stadiums, and everything is now out in the open, and on the up and up.

Roundy Coughlin, the sage of Madison, thinks there is something wrong with football in Wisconsin. He says the material is good, but that the smoothness and harmony is missing, and that it is time for a shakeup. We expected that, but not this early in the season.

Roundy particularly complains that Doc Speers hasn't the plays to get the boys into the open.

There will probably be plenty of fun in old Madison by Thanksgiving the way things are going now.

And we might mention some other places where things aren't what they should be.

ILLINOIS HORSE WINES

Kansas City, Oct. 25.—(P)—For the second successive year, Demaris, owned by E. W. Beghtol of Industry, Ill., won the $500 stakes in the harness event for ponies under 11-2 hands at the American royal horse show here today. By winning this stake, Demaris won the laurels as champion harness pony in that class.

CLEMSON WINS

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 25.—(P)—Clemson routed South Carolina 19 to 0 today in the annual fall week football game of the two old rivals.

It was the first victory for Clemson in three years and was scored before a capacity crowd of 18,000.

STORIES OF MYSTERY ARE TOLD AT MEET

out of positive personal qualities are lacking in the individual, the best health, the best education and the best opportunities to succeed may be a failure.

There are positive and negative personal traits, and those who possess the negative may find themselves at the root of the ladder. In fact one negative trait is enough to keep an otherwise good, healthy and well trained individual down.

Positive traits, the speaker said, include courtesy, kindness, dependability, originality, all so important that the lack of any of them will bring the brightest prospects to naught. Anyone possessing positive traits can go anywhere and be socially adaptable; he can make people like him anywhere and fit into any society, be it in the heart of a city or in the midst of an Indian reservation. A person with positive personal traits can always be more efficient and successful in his job.

These traits are acquired. Their in-cultation in the individual should begin in the earliest years. However, it is possible for older people to make themselves personally likable. Those traits are habits, and they can be eradicated or cultivated at the will of the individual. Are there any negative traits that you possess? Get rid of them by steady refusal to allow them to show; they will be gone in three weeks. Are there any positive traits you lack and must have? Get them by cultivation; begin at once, and in three weeks they will be yours. Are there any traits you possess but which should be increased? Begin now to cultivate them more intensively.

RELEASE MAIL CARRIER

Bolivar, Mo., Oct. 25.—(P)—William Lane, rural mail carrier, kidnapped yesterday near Halfway, Mo., advised Sheriff William (Jack) Killingsworth late today his abductors had left him at Haskell, Okla., and that he would be home "as soon as possible."

The finding of Lane's blood-spattered motor car earlier today near Melrose, Kas., had raised fears for his safety.

Lane's telegram said:

"Kidnapers left me here. Notify my wife be home soon as possible. Car in Kansas."

Blood was spattered over several sacks of mail in the abandoned automobile.

Arranging for Hauptmann's Murder Trial

Facing a long, bitter courtroom battle, these three men, who are guiding the legal phase of the trial of Bruno Hauptmann on charges of murdering Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., have nevertheless amiably settled some of the most important preliminary details. They agreed the trial would not start before December 11 and that Hauptmann would not ask a change of venue. Left to right are Prosecutor Anthony M. Hawk, Jr., of Hunterdon County, N. J.; James M. Fawcett, defense attorney, and Robert Peacock, Assistant Attorney General of New Jersey.

MRS. VANDERBILT STARTS DEFENSE AGAINST CHARGES

Trained Nurse Accompanies Her To Court Where Battle is Raging

New York, Oct. 25.—(P)—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt today began her defense against the charges by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her sister-in-law, that she is not a fit mother for her ten-year-old daughter, Floria, heiress to $4,000,000.

She began it, however, under the handicap of illness. With a trained nurse accompanying her, she went home at noon from the supreme court room where the legal battle for the custody of the child is being fought. She looked worn and pale.

"Will she be here tomorrow? She's very ill, but she'll be here even if she has to be brought down a litter, attended by 14 doctors," said her attorney, Nathan Burkan. "She is not going to let that Lady Whitney get away with all the mudslinging."

Mrs. Vanderbilt's first witness, Lawrence Copley Thaw, occupied the witness chair only a few minutes. Then came her twin sister, the former Lady Furness, who hurried over from Paris to testify for her.

In the courtroom barred to press and public, Lady Furness was still telling her story when court was adjourned for the day. She will continue her testimony tomorrow morning.

Supreme court justice John F. Carew announced that night sessions will be held if lawyers for both sides were willing. He said he wanted to complete the case this month.

Both Burkan and Herbert C. Smyth, attorney for Mrs. Whitney, again denied there was any prospect of a settlement, rumors of which have been current almost since the trial opened.

Smyth confirmed a report that in a three-hour chat with Justice Carew the day before, young Gloria had said she preferred living with Mrs. Whitney.

Gloria now is at the Long Island estate of Mrs. Whitney, her paternal aunt, where she has cousins of her own age to play with and a pony. She has been there the past two years.

CLAIM FARLEY HAS ENDORSED SINCLAIR

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—(P)—A purported endorsement of Upton Sinclair by James A. Farley, postmaster general and chairman of the Democratic national committee, added fire tonight to a California governorship campaign already buzzing with rumors of withdrawals and asserted plots.

Farley previously had not commented publicly upon the candidacy of Sinclair against that of Frank F. Merriam, Republican incumbent, although Sinclair was welcomed to Washington shortly after his nomination on a platform designed to "end poverty in California."

Sinclair headquarters in Los Angeles released a photostatic copy of a written endorsement purportedly signed by Farley.

INDIANA POLICE TRAIL ROBBERS

Chicago, Oct. 25.—(P)—Indiana officers turned to Chicago tonight in their hunt for five robbers who looted a reported $65,000 in cash and jewelry from the Long Beach, Ind. home of Thomas Maloy, head of the motion picture operators union, early today.

Mrs. Maloy, who was forced to surrender a key to the closet where the wealth was hidden, was under a physician's care because of treatment of the robbers.

The band gained entrance to the summer home using Thurman Rairden, Long Beach marshal, as a shield, but today Rairden was unable to identify pictures of known hoodlums shown him at the bureau of identification.

Maloy, said to be on a hunting expedition in Ontario, kept the large sum of money on hand for business of the union, his wife stated, and in the meantime, internal revenue officials were reported to be investigating whether income tax payment had been made on the sum.

Union officials said no communication had been received from Maloy, whose reign in the operators' union has been marked by violence and controversy.

MISSING CO-ED FOUND ON BUS

St. Louis, Oct. 25.—(P)—Elsie Walen, co-ed of Wayne University, Detroit, who had been missing since Monday, was taken off a bus by St. Louis police tonight and told them a story of having been kidnapped.

Police, advised by bus company authorities at Champaign, Ill., that an automobile had been following the bus from Chicago, met the vehicle as it pulled into a terminal here and took the girl into custody.

They said she told them she had been kidnapped as she left her class at 3:30 P. M., Monday, expressing a belief she was finally released because her abductors had "made a mistake."

The student told local officers that, after her abduction, she was held for a time in a house in the Detroit suburbs. Later she was moved to Gary, Ind., then to Chicago. Sometime today she said, she was placed on a bus at Chicago, her fair paid as far as St. Louis.

It was the driver of the tip bus, police revealed, who gave the tip that led to the girl being found here. The driver had noticed an automobile following him from Chicago and at Champaign, he reported the fact to bus company officials there and they, in turn, notified St. Louis police. Shortly after the young woman stepped from the bus she revealed her identity, police said.

APPROVE LOAN

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 25.—(P)—Acting Mayor Walter Wood said today the PWA had approved the City of Carbondale's application for a loan and grant totaling $260,000 for the construction of a municipally-owned electric light plant. Of the total, he said, $70,000 would be an outright grant and $190,000 a loan.

The proposal for the municipal plant must be submitted to the voters. At present the Central Public Service Co., furnishes the city with electricity but has no franchise, the voters having refused to grant one several years ago.

DREWRY'S October Ale

Now, for the first time in the United States, or at least for the first time in our modern United States, Drewry's inaugurates this age-old tradition of the English-speaking races with DREWRY'S OCTOBER ALE.

And in keeping with that tradition, it is rich amber in color, heavy in body and — well, the rest of it is also true. And yet for all its authority the October Ale is mild and mellow in flavor. So drink heartily, but have a care.

Under the monopoly proposal of Manchuria Oil Company, owned by Japanese interests, would have the sole right to sell and distribute oil and petroleum products in Manchoukuo.

Manchoukuo already, it is understood, has established an opium monopoly from which the government secures considerable revenue.

The petroleum industry control law became effective on July 1.

Outstanding provisions are:

1. All foreign oil companies must secure yearly licenses from the government.

2. Each foreign oil company must, in addition to stock for current demand, store the equivalent of a six months' supply of oil which can be taken over by the government at any time at a price set by the government regardless of whether that price is below actual production cost.

3. Foreign oil companies must give the government a comprehensive plan of their estimated future business and, if approved by the government, that plan must be carried out regardless of business conditions.

4. Import quotas are assigned foreign oil companies and the quotas, the American Oil companies explained, might be used to discriminate against them and favor uncontrolled Japanese oil companies.

ELLEN MCADOO IS MISSING FATHER'S PARTNER CLAIMS

Believe Daughter of Former Treasury Head May Wed Screen Actor

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The possibility that Ellen McAdoo, 19, had defied threats of disinheritance and possible legal action by eloping with 38-year-old Rafael Lopez De Onate, screen actor, was intimated here tonight by William H. Neblett, law partner of her father.

"I don't know where she is but it seems she has made up her mind to do something foolish," Neblett said after a visit to the girl's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo.

Neither the tall blonde debutante nor the actor could be found.

At the McAdoo home it was said Miss McAdoo, a granddaughter of Woodrow Wilson and daughter of Senator William G. McAdoo of California, had left there about 4 1/2 a. m., presumably to keep a luncheon engagement with De Onate.

Earlier in the day Neblett asserted Miss McAdoo would be cut off from her $10,000 a year allowance and might be subject to legal action if she eloped with De Onate. Mrs. McAdoo added the couple would not apply tomorrow for a marriage license as originally planned.

Miss McAdoo herself assented to this, and Neblett, who recently conducted an investigation to determine whether De Onate was of Filipino blood, said the marriage was "definitely off and permanently off."

Two suits were filed for trial in circuit court Thursday, in the office of Circuit Clerk P. F. McCarthy.

Lloyd C. Moss, et al are complainants in a petition to declare trust and to mortgage real estate. Roberta Moss, et al are named defendants in the complaint which asks the appointment of a trustee to mortgage real estate to pay debts claimed against the Moss estate. Mrs. Martha M. Kamm is complainant in a divorce suit filed against her husband, Warren H. Kamm. According to the complaint the Kams were married April 3, 1930 and resided together until September 4, 1932. Desertion is alleged. Ray Gruney is the complainant's attorney.

Clinging to Their Family Tree

How can he induce his sons to give up their arborescent retreat and return to conventional life within the four walls of their home? That's the problem that G. K. Thompson, British artist, stumped since the boys went back to nature on the family estate near Chalfont St. Peter, England. They are shown about to retire for the night, George, 9, giving Kenneth, 10, a hand up the ladder, while 12-year-old Paul puts out the fire.

FLOODS SWEEP WESTERN TOWNS

Seattle, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Torrents of water rushed down from the mountains today, flooding several cities and towns in western Washington. Continuing rain gave rise to fears of a repetition of last December's devastating inundations.

The Sultan, the Miller, the Snoqualmie and a score of other rivers overflowed because of four days of rain and the melting of snow in the highlands. Many highways were under water 8 inches to two feet deep.

Traffic was hampered and at some places rerouted. Vast lowland areas were slowly covered with water.

City and county authorities said they feared repetition of last December's floods, which caused damage running into the millions.

A few residents of Buxton fled to higher ground late today as high water of the Skookumchuck river, which rose seven feet, entered the town. The Mutual mill closed, as did the Western mill in Centralia.

The flood menace spread to Oregon, where the coast highway was blocked by high water in the Kilchis river. For 1,000 feet the water was too deep for automobiles.

The region endangered was barely recovering from Sunday's 81-mile an hour storm, which littered highways and streets with debris, tore down power and communication wires, wrecked houses and raised havoc with shipping, causing more than $1,000,000 damage.

RAYON INDUSTRY IS PARALYZED

Patterson, N. J., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Leaving behind them a silk and rayon dyeing industry virtually paralyzed by the day old strike of 30,000 workers, representatives of employers and employees left for Washington tonight to confer tomorrow with the national textile labor relations board in the hope of bringing the strike to a speedy conclusion.

Within an hour after the mills opened today the strikers had forced the shutdown of most of the plants. The others worked with skeleton crews. Tomorrow picket lines will form outside these plants determined to make the walkout complete.

The invitation to come to Washington to confer on a settlement of the strike—the first major walkout since President Roosevelt made his recapitulation for industrial peace—was extended by Benjamin Squires, executive director of the national textile labor relations board. Both sides accepted immediately.

GIRL IN THE FAMILY

BY BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXVII

John came back into the room dragging his old steamer trunk with him, whistling "By the Waters of Minnetonka" very softly.

"John," Susan said, helping him dust it off. "I had to tell you something that I hadn't planned to tell anyone for a while. I'm not going to marry Wallace."

"By the Waters of Minnetonka" broke off in the middle of one rippling measure. John dropped the old steamer trunk which had been during the trunk on the bed and took a package of cigarettes from his pocket.

"Yeah?" he asked, waiting for her to go on.

"That's where I've been for the last two or three hours—with Wallace. Trying to explain things to him," said Susan. "John, do you remember telling me that you didn't think I was so very crazy about him?"

"Yes, I was right. I thought I liked Wallace a lot, but now that I know Allen Sholes—" She threw out both her hands in a little helpless movement as if she were trying to show him just how hopeless her case was. "I'm just wild about him, John."

"Does he know it?"

"Of course he knows it. We're going to marry each other as soon as I've got away from Wallace and Allen has finished his course at law school and a few other minor details are out of the way."

"Allen Sholes," said John slowly. "Have you told Wallace about him?"

"No. But I've told him I'm in love with someone," said Susan. "The only thing that worries me about him is that I can't seem to convince him of it, and I'm afraid that he'll go to the folks about it next time he comes here to see me."

"Yes, I know you. You've done everything but come right out and tell him that you're off him for good," said John in his downright way. "Listen, Susan, if you're really through with the guy, why don't you go down to the telephone now and call him up—and tell him you never want to see him again? Tell him you're fed up! Be hard-bellied, but get it over to him!"

"Susan," began the girl, looking between her hands in an agony of indecision. "Oh, I couldn't do that. John," she decided after a long pause. "I've got to let him down easily. I could see that today. He was just about crazy."

"Well, you'd better do it, too, if you feel like this about him," John interrupted her. "And you'd better do it today and tell the family about it while I'm here. I'll call him and tell him you're doing, too, if you want me to. I'd enjoy it."

Susan's gray eyes widened with alarm. "Oh, no, John! Please don't do anything!" she begged. "If the family got it into their heads that I was turning Wallace down they'd think it was because of Allen, and they'd probably put him out."

"What of it?" John wanted to know. "He could go over to Cullen's and take the room that Connie's leaving empty, couldn't he? He'd be treated like a human being there instead of as a thug."

Susan's bare hand, curled inside her pocket, reached for his and found it. She was no longer jealous of Mary Cullen.

In the driveway that ran along the side of the Cullens' house stood their touring car. The kind of car

He ran downstairs to break the news that he was going away to the newly and Susan cried as she packed his tennis racket and his boxes of typewriter paper and the Bible that had belonged to his mother. He was taking so much more than himself away, it seemed to her. He was taking their past, his own and hers, too—the years when they had planned great futures for themselves as soon as they were old enough to get away from the soot-blackened old house.

That night, and Aunt Edna came waddling out to the kitchen at six o'clock to ask Susan to make a Yorkshire pudding to go with it. The Brodericks had always made a great point of their English descent and there was a family coat-of-arms, framed, hanging in the hall. Toward the end of the meal Uncle Worthy got up from the table, walked into the hall, and came back carrying it in his arms.

"I'm going to give you this for a wedding present, young fellow," he said, flicking dust from it with his napkin and shooting an accusing glance at Susan whose dusting had been sketchy that morning because of her eagerness to go downtown to see Wallace. "You may enjoy showing it to your children some day. They may like to know that their people are fine old English stock."

"My mother always told me that Grandfather Broderick used to boast of having been a farm boy," answered John, taking the gift in his arms. "and I've always thought it was fine of him to admit it after he became rich, instead of pretending that he was something else."

"Where did we get this thing?"

"Your Uncle Worthy sent for it. Some man makes a business of looking up people's family trees for them and having their coat-of-arms copied. It costs five hundred dollars to have it done," Lucie replied in a thick voice. She had had a bad cold for a day or two and her eyes were red tonight and she had forgotten to put on her lipstick and her pearl button earrings.

Before John left at half past seven she went to bed with a hot water bottle at her feet, and some kind of black salve smeared on her nose and throat. It left a long mark on John's face when she said goodby to him, hugging him tight to her pink flannel chest.

Susan left the house with him. They were to go to the Cullens' to pick up Connie on their way to the station as they started toward Mills Road. They saw Allen with a street car that stopped at the corner. It was his night to go to his law class, and Susan had a sick uneasy conviction that he had come to see her, hugging him tight to her pink flannel chest.

He came up to them and spoke to John, catching Susan's hand in his for an instant, pressing it hard. "I just saw Mary Cullen and she told me that you and Connie were married today—that you're going away tonight."

"Yes, that's the way things happen in the newspaper business—with a snap," said John comfortingly. "Don't you want to come along to the station with us? Then you can bring Susie back. We're going to the Cullens' first."

A southbound street car came along and they lifted John's suitcase and the suitcase he had boarded it. "Where did he see Mary Cullen?" Susan asked herself as they sat down in a row. Mary with her clever way with men—Mary would manage to see him if she wanted to.

"Where did he see Mary, Allen?" Susan asked when they were hurrying down Mills Road, going single-file through the snow drifts.

"On the Public Square. She was on her way home and I was going to get something to eat. But when she told me about John I thought I'd better come home. I knew you'd be upset about him."

Susan's bare hand, curled inside her pocket, reached for his and found it. She was no longer jealous of Mary Cullen.

In the driveway that ran along the side of the Cullens' house stood their touring car. The kind of car that the Cullens would have—long and roomy and sturdy. Dark figures moved around it against the blue-whiteness of the snow, stowing Connie's luggage away in it, and Connie's voice called out to John as he hurried up the street. "Hurry, hurry, or we'll miss our train and our job and everything else."

She came running to him and they clung to each other at the foot of the front walk as if they had been separated for weeks and days, instead of just a few hours.

Mary drove the car to the station and Connie and John sat in the front seat with her. The rest of them crowded into the back seat with their feet on the bags that were piled on the floor.

All the way downtown everyone talked about the plans that the bride and groom had made for their future. "I'm going to have a lending library just as soon as I can rent a shop of some kind and get it fixed up," Connie said. "I think that until a woman has children she ought to have some sort of work outside her home. Taking care of a service flat for two people can't keep a girl busy all day long, and I never could settle down to bridge playing and shopping as real occupations. I've worked too long."

"That's the right idea, Connie," Aunt Nell declared. "I don't see any reason why a girl shouldn't work until the new furniture's paid for, at least. If more girls were like you, Connie, more young men could get married and settle down instead of running around with all the night owls in town. I've always worked at something, if it was just renting a room in the house to someone, and it's done me good. I've bought lots of nice things with that extra money."

She leaned across Susan and spoke to Allen who sat in the corner. "Any time you hear of anyone who wants a nice room and one who wants to be married, you send him around to me," she said. "Must be a lot of young people down around that Courthouse who'd be glad to have Connie's old room if they just knew about it."

"I'll tell them," promised Allen. In the station, dazzlingly white under its lights, he stopped at a flower stand and bought flowers for Connie's black coat and an armful of newspapers and magazines for John.

The tracks gleamed like silver stretching miles and miles away toward Omaha. The train came sliding down the tracks with a great noise and stopped. There was a moment of wild confusion while John hunted for his Pullman tickets and helped Connie into the train. The conductor, called "Board—All aboard!" and the train slowly slid into motion again. They were gone.

"Oh, I do hope everything will be all right for them out there," Susan cried. "They seem so young—John is so young—going out there among strangers, in that new town."

"Don't you worry about them. They're both as tough as whit-leather, and they're having the time of their lives," Aunt Nell patted her shoulder briskly. "They'll get along like a parade—Even if John lost his job and Connie her book shop, they'd find something to do. You never hear of anyone starving—unless it's

Local Man to Speak On John Wesley at Sunday Service

The book sermon will be given at Grace Methodist church next Sunday night by one of Jacksonville's business men, Chalmers Giffen, and will be highly interesting for two reasons. First, he will deal with the life of John Wesley, whose work profoundly affected both the English and American people. Secondly, this address is a part of the observance of what is called the Sesqui-Centennial Celebration of the organization of the Methodist church in America.

The work of the Methodist church in America dates back to 1766, but one hundred and fifty years ago in December, 1784, the Methodist people of America who then numbered only 15,000 were separated from the Methodists in England by being organized into an American Methodist church. The conference was held in Lovell Lane Meeting House in Baltimore and was called the "Christmas Conference" because it was held at the Christmas season. Since those humble beginnings the 15,000 members have grown to nearly ten millions.

However, this amazing growth is not being celebrated in any spirit of vain boasting, but with the purpose of showing a warm gratitude to the great leaders of the past, and in their spirit and with their devotion to face the exacting demands of the present day. Mr. Giffen's address will be of interest and profit not only to members of the Methodist church but to many others who are not attending Sunday evening services elsewhere.

DEMOCRATS IN MEETING HERE TALK ISSUES

Candidates Talk At Session of Jeffersonian Club Thursday

Campaign speeches, predictions of victory for all Democratic candidates and charges of propaganda purported to come from opposition ranks were delivered at a largely attended meeting at the court house last night. A combination rally of the Jeffersonian club, auxiliary and allied organizations, drew a capacity audience to the circuit court room.

The county candidates were heard in short talks. Local orators speaking in their behalf declared that each will be elected November 6. Malden Jones of Springfield, secretary of the Downstate Young People's Democratic league, reviewed the accomplishments of the state and national administrations in support of his plea to "Help Roosevelt Finish the Job," by electing candidates who are in harmony with his programs.

Letters said to have been sent to certain "holdover" employees in state institutions here to the effect that they will be discharged immediately after election were branded as propaganda by Fred Cain, assistant secretary of the county Democratic organization. Cain charged that these were sent for a sinister purpose.

Max Thompson, president of the Morgan County Jeffersonian club, announced that the club membership now is 1500, and the auxiliary membership 700. Mrs. Henry W. English is auxiliary president.

After the reading of the minutes the president called on Mr. Cain to present the county candidates. In short speeches each man pledged himself to serve the public to the best of his ability if elected.

Kenneth Woods, candidate for sheriff, was introduced as a man who has had much experience in tax extension and other business affairs of the county. Mr. Woods now is a deputy county clerk. He is a lifetime citizen of the county and is a world war veteran.

County Clerk Fred Brockhouse, a candidate for reelection, said he believes his service in that office will be even more valuable to the public because of the experience he has gained there. He invited an inspection of his record and said he is willing to let that stand as his platform for reelection.

William H. Self explained that several years ago he became acquainted with the routine of the assessor and treasurer's while serving as a deputy there. He pledged himself to conduct the office fairly and impartially.

Running for county judge, Attorney William E. Thomson referred to his term in that position some 20 years ago. He declared that he believes he can make the people of Morgan county a better county judge now than before. His added legal experience has qualified him to capability of greater service.

L. B. Turner, candidate for commissioner, said if elected he will work toward a balanced budget for the county. He has had business and farming experience, and is well versed in business problems of the county.

The Democratic candidate for superintendent of schools, Victor H. Sheppard, said the education of the youth of the county is one of its most important tasks. Mr. Sheppard has had fourteen years of teaching and school administrative experience. He holds both a master's degree and life teaching certificate in Illinois.

Jones Speaks
Malden Jones, the principal speaker, said the people are so well acquainted with the accomplishments of the national administration that it is almost unnecessary to mention them at a public meeting to mention the county with Roosevelt and his program, and anything we can say about our president is the praise that we hear of him in the home, on the street and on the farm any day of the year.

Jones discussed the legislation that has been passed since Governor Horner assumed the helm in Illinois. "We are all proud of our Governor and appreciate the kind of service he is rendering," Jones said. "He is working untiringly for the good of Illinois and its people. Faced by many complex problems, he has forgotten what it is to rest and labor many hours each day and night. He does not rest until ordered to bed by his physician."

The state retail occupational tax, the speaker said, is steadily meeting with approval. He told of a trip into Douglas county during which he conversed with thirty-four farmers in four townships. Each of the farmers reported that his real estate taxes had been reduced from 12 1/2 to 25 per cent as a result of substitution of the sales tax for the state property tax.

JERUSALEM IS DISCUSSED BY DR. A. PERRY

Gives Fifth Lecture Here Last Night; To Speak at Club Meet

Thursday evening at the Central Christian church Dr. Albertus Perry delivered the fifth lecture of a series on Bible Lands. His theme was "Jerusalem." After answering a number of questions that were presented he gave a graphic portrayal of the entrance into the Holy Land and the land claimed for Great Britain. In a most interesting fashion the speaker narrated the manner in which the flag of Jerusalem was surrendered to the victorious army.

The Turks left the land without burning or destroying buildings or other property. Dr. Perry stated that under the English rule many much needed improvements have been made in Jerusalem and in the rule of the people. England has been fair to the Jew, the Arab and the Christian. The message of the message came in his 100 inside our city. This subject was approved by the state board of gas tax funds allotted to Bluffs.

Some very beautiful pictures taken by Dr. Perry and properly colored, illustrated the message, especially the reference to the church of the Nativity. W. W. WIDENHAM ORDERED TO PAY C. S. ST. L. $32,500

Court Rules Payment To Be Made on Subscriptions of Stock

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The superior court today ordered W. W. Widenham, foreman of the 1932 Los Angeles county grand jury, to pay $32,500 to the Chicago, Springfield & St. Louis railroad as principal and interest unpaid on a stock subscription in 1925 in the reorganization of the railroad.

Widenham contended he subscribed $20,000 with the record, verbal understanding that the subscription he obtained would cancel his own. Shortly after this alleged agreement, Widenham said he was discharged as a solicitor of subscribers, making it impossible for him to carry on the agreement.

Superior judge Clement Shinn ruled Widenham should pay $20,500 as the principal and $12,000 interest because a "secret agreement with one stockholder to escape paying a subscription is void as against the remaining stockholders, who had no knowledge of the agreement."

The railroad's receiver bought suit to collect from Widenham in 1931.

W. W. Widenham, mentioned in the above despatch is a former resident of Jacksonville. His father was a dentist here for many years.

He has been a resident of California for more than twenty years, but visited friends in Jacksonville last year.

STORIES OF MYSTERY ARE TOLD AT MEET

Prof. T. E. Musselman Entertains Teachers at Institute Here Thursday

Thrilling mystery stories out of the note book of Prof. T. E. Musselman, Quincy high school biologist and birdman, kept the teachers attending the afternoon session of the Morgan County Teachers' Institute entranced as the institute went into its second session Thursday. Dr. Franklin L. Wright, director of Education at Washington University, St. Louis, was the final speaker on the day's program, the teachers leaving for their homes to gather here again this morning for the final day of lectures.

Re-enacting, with his powers of graphic description, the tortures of the mind created by mysterious sounds, the Quincy educator kept his audience in thrill-bound suspension during his 45 minute interlude. Immediately after his talk, the gathering divided itself into three groups, one to hear Prof. Wright speak on "Education That Makes a Difference," another group to hear "The Development of Self Control" by Dr. Jesse H. White, and the other to hear the "Unit Plan in Reading" discussed by Miss Schuman.

The first of the mystery stories involved a bug which invaded an orchard of a friend of the Quincy teacher, laying eggs on a branch, and sealing the eggs over with a mucous secretion. The farmer called in the naturalist to learn what had caused the blister, and then heard the life story of this particular insect.

Dipping into his experiences in solving unusual problems, Musselman told of being called to a Quincy home where birds were continually flying against a window, and then failing to get through. A window pane, back of which was a black cloth, had made the window a mirror, and birds, seeing the reflection of trees in the window, continually struck it while flying.

In connection with this mystery, the Quincy professor told of finding a bird on the ground when he called to investigate. The bird seemed to be sinking into the ground, and he kept watch for a time and decided definitely that it was sinking. It was placed under a pall, and then examined at intervals, and 24 hours later the bird had completely disappeared.

Bury Bird.
A burying beetle had caused the bird to sink into the ground. The beetle had smelled the fresh meat, and hurried to the death scene. Immediately it set to work, assisted by a mole, and both of them had created a hole into which the bird gradually sank.

The mother beetle laid eggs beside the fresh meat, and in a few days little beetles hatched, fed on the meat, and then lapsed into a cocoon stage from which they emerged as fully fledged burying beetles.

A real thriller, with flying squirrels playing the part of the "burglar" held the large audience wrapped in suspense. Prof. Musselman said he was called one night by a distraught woman who declared that rats were over-running her home. Over the telephone the naturalist gathered that what was actually overrunning her house was flying squirrels. He investigated, and discovered that 16 squirrels had entered the house and were making a Roman's Holiday out of a bushel of hickory nuts that had been stored in the attic.

These squirrels he took home, and made pets out of them. One evening a guest at his house asked to see the squirrels and stepped onto the screened in back porch where the tiny animals were kept. They began jumping on the guest almost immediately, for they had been trained to leap onto the naturalist's arms in search of food. The Quincy newspaper got wind of the story and printed a column about the happenings, but the word apparently went unheeded by the burglar who later attempted to get into the Musselman home through this door. The squirrels also leaped on the burglar, causing him to flee.

The eerie hours spent in a home by a wife and her two children, while the husband was away, and the footsteps that were heard in the attic, which seemed to vanish after help had been called, provided the scenario for one of the weirdest of stories. The footsteps were heard on two nights, and by the time the mother and her two children had rushed to the neighbor's house for help, the cause of the sounds appeared to have vanished.

The third night the husband returned home, and again the noises began in the attic. He quickly grabbed his flashlight and gun, and calling to his son to follow, he went up the attic stairs. He flashed his light around without finding the object of his search until his son heard a noise behind a bushel basket. Looking there, the father found a screech owl, which had flown down the chimney, and had come out in the attic. The owl was weak from the failure to find food and was walking back and forth across the floor of the parrot trying to find a way out.
